DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

1. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

2. Claims 1-9 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Kawamura et al. (U.S. Patent Application Publication No. 2002/0093682) in view of Sakamoto (Japan Patent Application Publication No. 2001-111928).

With regard to claims 1, 4, and 6, Kawamura teaches a printer 1, method (Figure 11), and CPU 81 able to select and print arbitrary image data among plural image data recorded to a recording medium together with a making date, wherein, when automatic printing information for automatically printing a set of image data selected in advance is recorded to said recording medium, printing according to the automatic printing information is executed. (Figure 11, in addition, p [0117])

Kawamura does not teach comparing the dates of the plural image data and printing the newest image data first.

Sakamoto teaches a printer able to compare the making dates of the plural image data and print at least one item of image data starting from the newest image data of the plurality of image data. (p [0021])

At the time when the invention was made, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to start printing from the newest image data when automatic printing information has not been selected in advance.

The suggestion/motivation for doing so would have been to shorten the time a user spends on selecting an image for printing. (Sakamoto p [0021])

Therefore, it would have been obvious to combine Sakamoto with Kawamura to obtain the invention as specified in claims 1, 4, and 6.

With regard to claims 2 and 7, Sakamoto teaches the recording medium is the recording medium of a digital camera. (p [0019])

With regard to claims 3, 5, 8, and 9, Kawamura teaches automatic printing information is a DPOF (Digital Print Order Format) file. (p [0071])

Conclusion

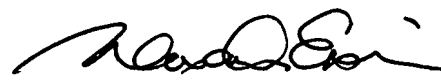

3. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. Parulski (US Patent 7,038,714); Nakajima (US Pub No. 2002/0093682); Tanaka (US Patent 7,224,480); Tomita (US Patent 6,975,416).
